OPENING

Honourable Minister, Permanent Secretary, distinguished guests — thank you for this opportunity.

Tanzania has a bold ambition: by 2050, every citizen should live under a just, inclusive, and accountable legal system. Dira 2050 says it plainly — good governance and justice are not outcomes of development. They are its foundation.

But there is a gap between that ambition and today's reality. Millions of Tanzanians do not know their rights. They cannot access legal information. And they have no way of getting answers without travelling to an office, hiring a lawyer, or knowing someone who can help.

"Access to justice begins with access to knowledge. For too long, that knowledge has been locked inside courthouses, law books, and offices that most Tanzanians will never enter. HuruLearn puts that knowledge in a text message."

WHAT HURULEARN IS

HuruLearn is an AI-powered learning platform, built in Tanzania by Huru Digital Tanzania. A citizen picks up any basic phone — no smartphone, no internet, no app — texts the word HURU followed by their question, and within seconds receives a clear, accurate answer in Kiswahili or English.

It is live today on Africa's Talking SMS network. It costs the citizen nothing more than a standard SMS. And it works in Mtwara just as well as it works in Dar es Salaam.

Text "HURU [question]" from any basic phone on any GSM network.	Backend identifies language and passes question to AI with legal context.	Gemini AI generates an accurate, curriculum-aligned answer in Swahili or English.	Citizen receives a clear SMS reply — ready to read, save, and act on.

We are not here to ask for funding to build something new. We are here to show you something that already works — and to propose three specific ways it can serve this Ministry's most urgent priorities right now.

HIGHEST PRIORITY

MSLAC II Digital Extension

Mama Samia Legal Aid Campaign Phase 2 · Already funded in the 2026/27 budget

MSLAC Phase One was historic — 4.1 million Tanzanians were assisted on matters relating to land, housing, and inheritance. Phase Two raises the stakes further, with a clear government directive: use technology to reach citizens who cannot reach your offices.

The challenge is this: legal aid clinics are overwhelmed. Citizens arrive without understanding their situation, without knowing what documents to bring, and without knowing whether their matter even qualifies for legal aid. Staff spend hours on cases that could be resolved with basic information.

HuruLearn solves this at the front door.

Before a citizen ever reaches a TANLAP clinic or a Ministry legal aid desk, they text HuruLearn. They learn what their rights are, what category their problem falls under, what evidence they need, and which office to visit. They arrive informed. The clinic works faster. More citizens are served.

The government does not need to build new offices. It does not need to hire more paralegals. It needs a pre-screening layer that works on every phone in the country — and that is exactly what HuruLearn provides.

MSLAC II alignment	Dira 2050 §3.1.1 — Good Governance & Justice	Legal Aid Act Cap.21

We propose: A formal integration of HuruLearn as the SMS pre-screening gateway for MSLAC II, co-branded with the Ministry, deployed to all 26 regions simultaneously.

2

DIRECT BUDGET
ALIGNMENT

"Uliza Sheria" — Ask the Law in Kiswahili

Ministry 2026/27 budget includes Kiswahili law translation · HuruLearn is Swahili-first by design

This year's budget includes funding for translating Tanzania's statutes into Kiswahili — a landmark step toward making the law accessible to all Tanzanians. But a translated law sitting in a gazette is still inaccessible to a farmer in Singida or a market vendor in Moshi.

HuruLearn bridges that final mile.

A citizen texts: "HURU ardhi yangu inaweza kuuzwa bila ruhusa yangu?" — and receives an answer drawn directly from the Land Act, in plain Kiswahili, within seconds. Not a legal opinion. Not advice. The law — explained clearly.

The Ministry co-authors and validates the content. This makes HuruLearn an official, government-endorsed channel for legal information — not a third-party app, but an extension of the Ministry itself. Every citizen who uses it receives information that carries the authority of this office.

This directly serves Dira 2050's call for strong institutions and public trust in government. When citizens can access the law easily and accurately, trust in the legal system grows — and that trust is measurable.

Citizen texts:	"HURU ardhi yangu inaweza kuuzwa bila ruhusa yangu?"
HuruLearn replies:	Kulingana na Sheria ya Ardhi ya Tanzania (Land Act Cap.113), ardhi yako haiwezi kuuzwa bila idhini yako kama mmiliki. Una haki ya kupinga uuzaji wowote mbele ya Mahakama ya Ardhi ya Wilaya.

Kiswahili law translation mandate	ICT digital governance pillar	Public trust & institution building
-----------------------------------	-------------------------------	-------------------------------------

We propose: A joint content development programme where Ministry legal officers work with HuruLearn to build a Kiswahili legal information library — updated in real time as laws are translated, accessible via SMS to every Tanzanian.

VISION 2050
FOUNDATION PILLAR

"Haki za Mwananchi" — Constitutional Literacy by SMS

Dira 2050 §3.1.1 — Good Governance & Justice as the foundation pillar

The Constitution of the United Republic of Tanzania guarantees every citizen remarkable protections — the right to dignity, to a fair trial, to own property, to participate in governance. But research across Sub-Saharan Africa consistently shows that fewer than one in five citizens can name the basic rights they hold.

This is not ignorance. It is a delivery failure. Constitutional education has never reached people where they are.

HuruLearn delivers it where they are — on their phone.

HuruLearn runs a structured SMS civic education series — Haki za Mwananchi — delivered as short, weekly lessons texted directly to citizens who opt in. Topics are practical, grounded in real life, and approved by the Ministry.

Topic	What citizens learn
Your rights if arrested	Right to silence, right to legal counsel, unlawful detention
Women's rights under Tanzanian law	Property rights, inheritance, protection from GBV
Land ownership rights	Customary rights, dispute resolution, Land Act protections
Right to government information	Access to Information Act, accountability mechanisms
Your role as a voter	Electoral rights, how to report irregularities, civic duty

The Ministry approves all content. The campaign is co-branded as a government initiative. Citizens associate their growing awareness with this Ministry — building exactly the public trust that Dira 2050 demands as the foundation of national development.

Dira 2050 governance foundation	Anti-corruption education	2025/26 electoral cycle readiness
---------------------------------	---------------------------	-----------------------------------

We propose: A Ministry-led "Haki za Mwananchi" SMS campaign, launched ahead of the 2025/26 electoral cycle, targeting one million citizen subscribers in the first year.

WHY THIS, WHY NOW

The Ministry's 2026/27 budget of TZS 775 billion signals a decisive shift — the legal sector is no longer a support function. It is a driver of national development. That budget includes digital transformation, legal aid expansion, civic education, and Kiswahili law translation. Every shilling of that mandate can be amplified by HuruLearn.

We are not asking you to adopt an experiment. We are asking you to deploy a working tool — one already live on Tanzania's SMS network — in service of commitments you have already made to Parliament and to the people of this country.

Already Live HuruLearn is operational today on Africa's Talking SMS network. No procurement. No pilot risk.	Budget-Aligned All three initiatives map directly to funded line items in the 2026/27 Ministry budget.	26-Region Reach SMS reaches every region simultaneously — no infrastructure, no physical offices needed.

WHAT WE ASK

Three things, Honourable Minister:

First	A meeting with your technical team to demonstrate HuruLearn live and agree on a content framework for all three initiatives.
Second	A letter of intent to co-develop HuruLearn as an official Ministry digital channel under MSLAC II.
Third	A pilot authorisation to launch in three regions within 90 days, with measurable targets agreed upfront.

Tanzania has the vision.
We have the tool.
Together, we can make legal literacy a reality for every mwananchi — not by 2050, but starting today.

Asante sana.
